ASSISTING STUDENTS AND PROMOTING A CULTURE OF WELL-BEING

BECOME FAMILIAR WITH SIGNS THAT MAY INDICATE AN INDIVIDUAL NEEDS SUPPORT.

Students experience a wide variety of challenges that will produce stress. In more severe instances, stress may lead to more serious concerns of distress or crisis when it begins to impact or disrupt daily functioning.

A student in distress may present changes in their behavior, mood, cognition, physical appearance, or verbally indicate issues.

Students in Distress may:

• Present as irritable, sad, unduly anxious, withdrawn, confused, lacking motivation or concentration, seeking constant attention, showing lack of hygiene, or demonstrating bizarre, erratic, or concerning behaviors including references to self-harm.

A student in crisis may present similar behaviors as a student in distress as well as other serious concerns that may raise further concern for well-being and safety. A student in crisis warrants a more immediate follow-up.

Students in Crisis may:

• Exhibit similar behaviors to distressed students with escalating concerns, which may include behavior that is reckless, fixated, disorderly, aggressive, threatening, and dangerous to self or dangerous to others.
• Interfere in the University of Iowa’s learning environment with behavior that is reckless, disorderly, aggressive, defiant, destructive, threatening, and dangerous to self or dangerous to others.

RESPONDING TO STUDENTS

Response

• Acknowledge the parallel stressors facing students and faculty, especially during times of trauma and uncertainty.
• Emphasize the importance of well-being and self-care, and acknowledge it may be challenging to attend to personal well-being in environments that stress competition and achievement.
• Be accessible to students and let them know they can share challenges with you.
• Promote the use of university support resources on your syllabus and offer occasional reminders to access them.
• Become familiar with how and when to refer students to university resources.
• Follow up with students sometime after first contact to check in on “how they are doing,” to offer further support the student, and indicate that care can be ongoing.

Reporting Concerns

• Always report serious or persistent inappropriate behavior to the Office of the Dean of Students.
• Safeguard the student’s privacy rights.
• Keep Student Care and Assistance and the Threat Assessment and Care Team informed of new concerns.

ADDRESSING CONCERNS

When to consult with another resource:

• Anytime you’re not sure how to handle or approach the concern(s)
• Student keeps coming back and is not following through on referrals
• Increasing complexity in concerns

When to refer students to another resource:

• You’re providing more “counseling” than “advising”
• Problems or requests are outside of your scope
• Issue would benefit from additional support and staff members
• Behavior shows no improvement or worsening
Privacy Laws and Confidentiality:
The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) permits communication about a student of concern under the following circumstances:

- UI may disclose personally identifiable information from an “educational record” to appropriate individuals in connection with a health or safety emergency. Information may be released to parents, police or others, if knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals.

- Information can be shared with university personnel when there is a specific need to know and should be limited to the essentials of university business.

- Observations of a student’s conduct or statements made by a student are not “educational records” and are therefore not protected by FERPA. Such information should be shared with appropriate consideration for student privacy.

- Offices that are considered confidential according to their licensure and professional standards are denoted with an *asterisk in the master resource list. As such, they will follow their professional standards in prioritizing privacy when working with individuals. However, they will share information when necessary in the case of an individual being at likely and imminent risk of harm to self or others.

Code of Student Life
The Code of Student Life helps students learn and grow to become the best version of themselves, so they are better equipped to embody the IOWA Challenge, positively contributing to the Hawkeye community and beyond.

Check

- ASK if they have safety concerns. Be ready to connect with someone who can help with safety planning at the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, Domestic Violence Intervention Program, or Threat Assessment Program.

Refer

- INFORM the student about confidential support and advocacy services:
  - Rape Victim Advocacy Program
  - Domestic Violence Intervention Program
  - University Counseling Service
  - Women’s Resource and Action Center

Listen

- WITHOUT JUDGMENT.
- RESPECT THEIR CHOICES. This includes what and how much they disclose, what services are needed, and whether to report to law enforcement or university officials.
- DON’T ASSUME that physical contact, even a gentle touch or hug, will be comforting.

Clarify

- BE UP FRONT about your ability to maintain confidentiality. Offering confidentiality you can’t keep will undermine trust, so know your reporting responsibilities.
- COMMUNICATE that sexual violence is never the responsibility of the survivor.

Report

- FOLLOW THROUGH if you have reporting responsibilities. The policy may require that you notify the Title IX and Gender Equity unit in the Office of Institutional Equity within two business days.
