Quick Guide for Responding to Distress

If the Student:

Threatens to injure, harm, kill, or risk the safety of self or others
- Refuses to leave the classroom after being asked to leave
- Reports or initiates a threat or bomb scare

If the Student Exhibits:

Unusual communication and/or behaviors, including threats to harm self or others
- Desperation, hopelessness, or suicidal thoughts
- Unusual fixation on stressful events or losses
- Inappropriate interest in weapons, mass attacks, or violence
- Suggestion of violence as a solution to a problem

If the Student:

Appears to be out of touch with reality
- Reports suicidal thoughts or actions, depression, hopelessness, anxiety, difficulty dealing with grief

If the Student Exhibits:

Reports having been a victim of a stalking
- Reports sexual misconduct or relationship violence

Indicates experiencing hate crimes, bias, or discrimination

If the Student:

Reports feeling overwhelmed by a personal or family emergency/concern
- Difficulty securing basic needs (food, shelter, utilities, etc.)
- Exhibits behavior that interferes or obstructs university processes/functions, including instruction and office operations.
- Expresses an overall sense of struggling with difficulties of an unclear nature

If the Student:

Is having academic difficulty due to physical, psychological, or learning disability
- Indicates a need for disability accommodations

Is not attending class for an extended period of time
- Seems overwhelmed by a problem that could affect university attendance or persistence

ASSISTING STUDENTS AND PROMOTING A CULTURE OF WELL-BEING

BECOME FAMILIAR WITH SIGNS THAT MAY INDICATE AN INDIVIDUAL NEEDS SUPPORT.

Students experience a wide variety of challenges that produce stress. In more severe instances, stress may lead to distress or crisis when it begins to impact or disrupt daily functioning.

A student in distress may present changes in their behavior, mood, cognition, physical appearance, or verbally indicate issues.

Students in Distress may:

- Present as irritable, sad, unduly anxious, withdrawn, confused, lacking motivation or concentration, seeking constant attention, showing lack of hygiene, or demonstrating bizarre, erratic, or concerning behaviors including references to self-harm.

A student in crisis may exhibit similar behaviors as a student in distress as well as other behaviors that may indicate concern for well-being and safety. A student in crisis warrants more immediate follow-up.

Students in Crisis may:

- Exhibit similar behaviors to distressed students with escalating concerns, which may include behavior that is reckless, fixated, disorderly, aggressive, threatening, and dangerous to self or others.
- Interfere in the learning environment with behaviors that are reckless, disorderly, aggressive, defiant, destructive, threatening, and dangerous to self or others.

RESPONDING TO STUDENTS

Response

- Acknowledge the parallel stressors facing students and faculty, especially during times of trauma and uncertainty.
- Emphasize the importance of well-being and self-care, and acknowledge it may be hard to attend to well-being in environments that emphasize competition and achievement.

- Be accessible to students and let them know they can share challenges with you.
- Promote the use of university support resources on your syllabus and as verbal reminders.
- Become familiar with how and when to refer students to university resources.
- Follow up with students after first contact to check in on them and to offer further support.

Conversation Starters for Students and Employees

Students in your courses or working in your office may also approach you for help. This is a good sign that they trust you. As faculty and staff, sometimes we are so worried about saying the wrong thing that we don’t say anything. Simply showing that you care and that you can connect them to the appropriate resources goes a long way.

- “How are you? Are you ok?”
- “Tell me more about that.”
- “I’ve recently noticed…”
- “That sounds difficult. How can I support you?”
- “I remember dealing with that when I was a student. What would be helpful?”
- “I may not know the answer, but I want to support you and connect you with the right resources on campus.”

There are many resources on campus – if you don’t know the right one, please connect them with Student Care and Assistance.

REPORTING CONCERNS

- Always report serious or persistent inappropriate behavior to the Office of the Dean of Students.
- Safeguard the student’s privacy rights.
- Keep Student Care and Assistance and the Threat Assessment Team informed of new concerns.

ADDRESSING CONCERNS

When to consult with another resource:

- Anytime you’re not sure how to handle or approach the concern(s)
- Student keeps coming back and is not following through on referrals
- Increasing complexity in concerns

When to refer students to another resource:

- You’re providing more “counseling” than “advising”
- Problems or requests are outside of your scope
- Issue would benefit from additional support and staff members
- Behavior shows no improvement or worsening
ASSISTING VICTIMS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT, DATING VIOLENCE, OR STALKING

Assisting Students who Experience Sexual Harm
Sexual harm includes any conduct covered by the university’s Policy on Sexual Harassment and Sexual Misconduct, encompassing sexual harassment, sexual misconduct, dating/domestic violence or stalking.

Check
- ASK if they have safety concerns. Be ready to connect them with someone who can help with safety planning at the Rape Victim Advocacy Program, Domestic Violence Intervention Program, or Threat Assessment Program. UI Police Department can assist with safety concerns and provide reporting options.

Clarify
- BE UP FRONT about your ability to maintain confidentiality. Offering confidentiality you can’t keep will undermine trust, so know your reporting responsibilities.
- COMMUNICATE that sexual violence is never the responsibility of the survivor.

Listen
- WITHOUT JUDGMENT.
- RESPECT THEIR CHOICES. This includes what and how much they disclose, what services are needed, and whether to report to law enforcement or university officials.
- DON’T ASSUME that physical contact, even a gentle touch or hug, will be comforting.

Refer
- INFORM the student about confidential support and advocacy services:
  - Rape Victim Advocacy Program
  - Domestic Violence Intervention Program
  - University Counseling Service
  - Women's Resource and Action Center

Report
- FOLLOW THROUGH if you have reporting responsibilities. The policy may require that you notify the Title IX and Gender Equity unit in the Office of Institutional Equity within two business days.

LAWS AND CODES

Privacy Laws and Confidentiality:
The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) permits communication about a student of concern under the following circumstances:

- UI may disclose personally identifiable information from an “educational record” to appropriate individuals in connection with a health or safety emergency. Information may be released to parents, police or others, if knowledge of the information is necessary to protect the health or safety of the student or other individuals.
- Information can be shared with university personnel when there is a specific need to know and should be limited to the essentials of university business.
- Observations of a student’s conduct or statements made by a student are not “educational records” and are therefore not protected by FERPA. Such information should be shared with appropriate consideration for student privacy.
- Offices that are considered confidential according to their licensure and professional standards are denoted with an *asterisk in the master resource list. As such, they will follow their professional standards in prioritizing privacy when working with individuals. However, they will share information when necessary in the case of an individual being at likely and imminent risk of harm to self or others.

Code of Student Life
The Code of Student Life helps students learn and grow to become the best version of themselves. Hawkeyes are expected to embody the Iowa Challenge by positively contributing to the community and beyond. The Code of Student Life establishes a framework to ensure our Hawkeye community achieves and upholds the goals and values listed in the Iowa Challenge and Code of Student Life. The university is committed to due process and fairness when applying these rules and engaging in the Student Accountability Process. When you become a Hawkeye, you agree to understand and abide by the rules listed in the code, recognizing that this document helps us maintain a safe, healthy, respectful, and supportive community, embodying the meaning of being a Hawkeye.

Examples of prohibited behavior include:
- Physical assault, sexual assault, sexual misconduct, or domestic violence
- Threats that cause a reasonable person to be fearful for one’s own safety or the safety of others
- Intoxication or impairment through the use of alcohol or other substances to the point where an individual is unable to care for themselves
- Obstruction or disruption of teaching, research, administration, disciplinary procedures or other University activities
- Use, display, or storage of a weapon or destructive device
- Harassment based on race, ethnicity, religion, sexual orientation, disability, gender identity/expression, and other forms of harassment
- Stalking, hazing, and disorderly behavior

THREAT ASSESSMENT TEAM (TAT) ~
(319) 384-2955 • uitat@uiowa.edu • hr.uiowa.edu/tat
Anonymous Online Report: uiowa.me/threat-assessment
Threat assessment involves implementing robust support through compassionate-solution based strategies for individuals experiencing distress or grievances through outreach, intervention, and de-escalation to mitigate the risk of planned physical harm to others or self. The primary objective is to provide an individual with assistance, while working to ensure effective safety outcomes for the campus community.

KOGNITO

Kognito is an online, interactive training that builds awareness, knowledge, and skills about mental health and suicide prevention. It prepares users to lead real-life conversations with fellow students and colleagues who are in distress and how to connect them with the support they need. More information and how to access the training can be found at mentalhealth.uiowa.edu/kognito.
